Pageant Arouses Interest

Under the experienced supervision of Director Perry Newberry "The Pageant of the Padres" is rapidly assuming the finish of a well rounded-out production. Almost every evening the principals may be seen at the Forest Theatre perfecting the roles to which they have been assigned, while during the afternoons the group dancers are rehearsing the graceful movements of the "Estudiantina."

Among the Spanish dancers thus far selected are the following: The Misses Devendorf, Murphy, Waud, Hathaway, Hooper, Leavell, Turner, Crumby, Wood and Perkins, and the Messrs. Bremner, Pawson, Hooper, Williamson, Hanna, Leidig, Munroe, McDonald and Campbell. Including those named there will be twelve couples participating in the "Estudiantina," which if present predictions are verified, will be one of the big "hits" of the spectacle drama.

In addition to the group dance Miss Jeanette Hoagland will be seen in a solo dance of the Spanish variety. Both the group and solo dances occur during the fiesta scene in the third episode of the pageant, which from the spectacular standpoint, will probably be the most effective in the entire play.

Due to pressure of business, Joseph W. Haud, Carmel's versatile realty and insurance broker, has been compelled to relinquish the part of Alpoco, the Indian brave, and this part will be taken by Mr. Ed. A. Mills of the Feature Films Company, a professional actor, possessing histrionic talents of a high order. Mr. Pawson has been chosen for the role of Don Gaspar de Portola, and if his work is any criterion, his interpretation will prove a revelation to those unacquainted with his capabilities as an actor. Other roles settled upon by Mr. Newberry are as follows: Ludovic Bremner in the dual parts of Fra. Palou and Fra. Gomez; Shirley Williamson as Senora Peralta; Henry Larquette as Fra. Crespi; W. L. Overstreet as captain of the Guards; Lawrence Leidig as Captain of Indian horsemen; Mrs. W. L. Overstreet as Captain of women riders; Dr. E. L. Williamson as Captain of cavaliers; Dale Tilden as Captain of Spanish women; Ben Leidig as Captain of sailors; John Selby Hanna as Don Jose de Galvez; Herman Whittaker as Sargeant Ortega; and Grant Wallace as Costanso.

Death of an Old Resident

Wm. P. Ball, for many years a resident of Carmel and vicinity, passed away at 7 o'clock Saturday evening, after a prolonged illness.

He was born in Virginia, and had reached the age of ninety four. He was father of sixteen children, eleven boys and five girls.

The deceased had a most active life. He was a veteran of the [illegible] War [illegible] to California in 1850. He engaged in various pursuits, staging, cattle-buying, ranching, etc.

A widow and several married and unmarried children survive him.

He was buried yesterday at the Monterey Presidio, with military honors.

Birds as an Economic Factor

Estimating that a billion dollars' worth of foodstuff is destroyed each year, which is the conclusion of experts on the subject, a Chicago grain broker thinks that if the insect-destroying birds could be saved each year this loss would be measurably decreased, if not prevented. He thinks birds do not migrate from the north in winter because of climate, but because of scarcity of food; and he has established a winter feeding place in his suburban home. He has comfortable bird houses put in trees, and, for feeding, a suet box with a wire grating, so that the bird may peck through at the suet and yet not get it all at once, but for the greater reason that it prevents the larger birds from driving off the smaller ones, which is the case where suet is placed in a lump on the ground or hung unprotected. The result so far is that many birds of species ordinarily known to Chicago during winter months remain on [illegible] man's place, while still others coming from the north stop there. This encourages his belief that a systematic and widespread feeding of birds would retain them, and so have them for use to exterminate the insect pests which now cause so great loss.

BE A FRIEND.

Live your life in friendship's sun
Warm and glowing let it run
Out to other fellows' lives,
Cheer the neighbor here who strives
Smile on him, and shake his hand,
Let him know and understand,
Skies of gray, or skies of blue,
That he has a friend in you.

Live your life out to the end
Brave and helpful, as a friend;
Do no draw yourself apart
Narrow mind, and selfish heart;
There is much more real fun
Sharing life with every one.
Let who will, if he be true,
Claim a real friend in you.

Live your life in friendship's sun,
Open-hearted, full of fun.
Don't go trudging on alone,
Merely selfish flesh and bone;
Let your heart forever be
Filled with human sympathy;
Share whatever God may send,
That's the way to be a friend.

Wild Flowers of Carmel.

From time to time the Pine Cone will print the names and descriptions of the wild flowers which grow in and about Carmel, until the entire list is completed.

CHAMISE, CHAMISAL. Adenostoma. Shrub, with dense pyramidal clusters of tiny, rose like blossoms and numerous linear leaves in bunches around the very branching, brownish stems. Just now at its best, and very abundant in the chaparral.

VIOLET NIGHTSHADE. Solanum. Clusters of beautiful violet flowers, with small, yellow centers; one species having green spots, encircled with white, at the base of the stamens. Foliage, mostly of a grayish green. One to two feet high, along roadsides, but often found in the chaparral reaching up four or five feet to overlook the surrounding vegetation. Belong- Egg plant, Tobacco and Petunia.

Sticky Monkey-flower. Diplacus glutinosus. Through the chaparral and along the roadsides are bushes of the monkey-flower, just now very abundant. The coru-colored blossoms standing in pairs, and the stickiness of the plant, makes it easily identified.

Sun-Cups, Golden Eggs. Oenothera ohata. An attractive little plant belonging to the Evening Primrose family. From the rosette of leaves rise the bright yellow flower of four petals, on an apparent flower stem, which is in reality a prolonged calyx tube, one to four inches long, the seed-vessel being just below the ground. Found in open places. Southern limit. Another species is the Beach Primrose.

O. cheiranthifolia, growing on the dunes. The stems are prostrate, radiating from a central rosette of leaves, the flowers yellow, smaller than the sun-cup, but the distinguishing mark is the spirally coiled seed-capsule.

BRASS BUTTONS. Cotula coronopifolia. Around wet places may be seen what appear to be daisies with the petals pulled off, but they are little composite flowers with the descriptive name of Brass Buttons.

PAN-AMERICAN POSTAL RATES

If the plan for lowered postal rates between the American republics fails to become operative soon it will be due probably to conditions in the South American states that make their officials hesitate about reducing revenue at a time when there is need of more rather than less income. It is true that a reduced rate if made operative, with other conditions favorable, often induces so much new business that the net gain of the postal department is considerable; but it is doubtful whether such conditions exist now or can be counted upon for some little time.

Nevertheless it is a sign of growing amity that the postoffice department officials in Washington should have been willing to broach the matter to the governments of the nations to the south. A refusal to enter into such a compact now is no sign of what ma be ventured upon a year or two hence.

If, as President Wilson in his recent talk to the officers and crew of the new Argentine battleship Moreno said, the secret of mounting Pan-American unity is to be found in developing intercourse between the nations of the south and those of the north, then the less costly the means of communication the better. The scale on which business is done and correspondence is carried on today is such that, from the correspondents' standpoint, a tax of 1, 2, or 5 cents postage means much. If the postage rate between the American republics could be lowered to the basis that now obtains between Great Britain and the United States, decided moral and educational gains would quickly register themselves.

For reasons of sentiment and strategy champions of the plan no doubt will be alert to press for favorable action as soon as the curtain of uncertainty lifts from the business world, whether it be tomorrow or the day after.

THE RECTORY
Monterey
June 17, 1915

Dear Mr. Overstreet:

Next Thursday, June 24th. is the 25th anniversary of Bishop Nichols' Consecration to the Episcopate, and it is the Bishop's wish that Communicants in the Diocese confirmed by him since his advent among us, make a special effort to come with others to the Holy Communion on that day, with earnest prayer and supplication that the Divine blessing may rest upon the Diocese, upon the Church of God in California, and upon our own souls, that we may all be Confirmed by Him, coming behind in no gift, waiting for the Coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

In order to comply with this wish I have decided to celebrate the Holy Communion at Carmel on Thursday (St. John Baptist's Day) at 10:30 a. m. which is the hour set for the service at the Cathedral in San Francisco.

Will you be so kind as to make some mention of this in your next issue urging all to take advantage of this opportunity.

Sincerely,
A. W. DARWALL

Park Boys' Show To-night

News of the Camp

The energies of the Columbia Park Boys are at present centered upon the monster entertainment to be given by them at the Forest Theatre to-night.

Anyone who has attended one of these unique shows will tell you that one certainly gets his money's worth—and then some. The program includes singing, monologue, acrobatic stunts, a comedy. You need to be cheered up and the boys need the money—Go.

The camp is in fine shape. Mr. C. F. Norton says it is one of the best bunches of kids he has ever handled, very little disciplinary action being necessary.

On Friday morning the entire command went on a walk to Point Lobos, where they spent the day. The size of the lunch each boy carried speaks well for the health of the party.

Chauncy Olcott Healy is spending much time these days editing the "Turk Street Gazoot," of which he is the official bouncer.

Much of the detail work of the camp is being efficiently performed by Vice-President Milton Brown.

Mrs. E. Hayes, of the Parents' Club of San Francisco, was a week end visitor to the camp.

The ball game on Sunday was a good one. The park boys won the game from the Carmel "Old Stiffs" in an eighth inning batting rally. Healy's slide to third was the special feature.

Help Make Pageant a Huge Success

In order that the pageant-drama, "Junipero Serra," may be the success which Carmel desires, it will be necessary that every man and woman in Carmel assist in the cast. We need 100 men to be Spanish soldiers and riders. We need thirty Indian women, twelve Spanish women, and four more Spanish lady riders with horses.

We will rehearse all the cast on Monday evening, June 28, and in costume at dress rehearsal, Thursday evening, July 1. These will be the only rehearsals of everybody in the pageant, and with the performance on the evenings of July 2, 3, and 5, make but five short evenings to give up for the benefit of your town. It is so little that Carmel asks of you; help the town by leaving your name at the Pine Cone office, signifying your willingness to assist.

Perry Newberry,
Pageant Director.
